Hot as the Desert!Von Anna SalamatinThis is a quick, romantic read that has some beautiful descriptions of the Arizona desert which I enjoyed because I've spent time there and could see it just as Wynter wrote it!....Eve Mason is a Black woman who lives in New York, she works for Buzz Magazine.She is sent to Sedona Arizona to do an interview with a best selling Author by the name of Beau Calloway who wrote a book titled "Soul of the Garden" o.K., so she will interview someone who can make things grow anywhere or some such crap.... But she really wasn't prepared for this very tall, broad shouldered white man who stepped up and offered his hand, or the heat that climbed up her neck and face as she shook it and looked up into a pair of pale blue eyes.....Over the week end Beau shows her the Grand Canyon, they spend time together with the interview and get to know each other a little and the whole time the pull is there until finally, quite by accident, they are in a compromising situation and they come together as lovers. Beau tells her that he wanted her from the moment he saw her and he wants this to be a start for them, But Eve is gun shy, she says she needs to go back to her job, her life and she leaves. She is absolutely miserable, she misses Beau but she is afraid,. Then she comes dragging home and Beau is there leaning on her door waiting for her. Is she happy to see him? Will she talk to him, tell him what she fears. Can they work it out and be together? Gonna have to read it to see! I will tell you that I enjoyed this story and do recommend it but only to adults please, it is an erotic romance.

Kurzbeschreibung When New York reporter Eve Mason's boss gives her an ultimatum, she's forced to step out of her comfort zone and onto a westbound flight to interview gardening guru Beau Calloway. The last thing she expects is a fling with the reclusive author. But when Beau sweeps her off her feet, she must choose between the comfort of her safe world or the new, unknown landscape in the heart of the desert.
