wonderful comic romantic suspenseVon Ein KundeUsed to being alone and succeeding at any endeavor, Coleman Young, CEO of Coleman Industries is bored with his current life even though he luxuriates in the exclusive Sonoran Resort in the Arizona desert. Coming out of his shower, Coleman is shocked to find a female butler, Georgiana Burne-Jones, in his room. She is the daughter of wealthy parents who thought she could cope with anything but is shocked because she witnessed a murder.Coleman finds both his visitor and her story quite fascinating. Needing an escape anyway, he decides to help the distraught but gorgeous butlerette. However, Coleman may regret his decision as they both are on the lam from killers who want to silence the only person who saw what they did. Additionally, the duo begins to fall in love, but Coleman believes that love is fleeting and relationships do not last as he can testify from his childhood stays in foster homes. Even as they try to remain ahead of their enemy, Georgiana wonders how she can convince her beloved that they can share a lifetime of happiness if he only can let the past go. LADY'S MAN will remind readers of those classy Katherine Hepburn's romantic adventure movies. The story line is crisp and filled with action and nonstop suspense. The lead protagonists are a warm pair who will charm readers even as Coleman struggles with his desire for Georgiana to permanently want him. When it comes to romantic suspense with a comedic twist, Suzanne Simmons is no ordinary writer. Harriet Klausner 0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. An Enjoyable Couple-on-the-Run Romance Von Ein Kunde I picked this book up out of habit more than interest, as Ms Simmons' last book "No Ordinary Man" was quite difficult to finish. However, I'm sure glad I did. This is because "Lady's Man" is most probably her best work to date. The interaction between the Cole and Georgiana is simple, yet charming and warm. Miss Simmons here is at her witty best, as some of the wry wit here concerning Cole's outlook in life and the Boston vs Texas way of life comparisons. And the pace never slows down as the two went on the run along the countryside. It is in the description of the latter that Ms Simmons' writings came to life in vivid technicolour. It's obvious she loves the rustic life, for reading her words I could almost see the colourful panorama of the rustic wilderness, feel the sunlight warm on my skin, and hear the country music in bounc honky-tonk bars. There are a few quibbles though - running away from the law isn't really a good or wise thing to do really. And I never really get to know Georgiana's relationship with her parents well. However, I'm considering going searching for the Room of Light now... :) 0 von 0 Kunden fanden die folgende Rezension hilfreich. Stayed up until 3:00 a.m. to finish Lady's Man. Von Louisa Henry The story starts out with one suspenseful night and just gets better and better from there. Georgiana Burne-Jones is only doing her job when she literally stumbles onto a dead man. The problem is she may be counted among the murder suspects. Enter Coleman Worth, successful businessman with a tough-guy edge to him. For some reason his gut instincts tell him that the woman is telling him the truth when she claims to be an innocent bystander framed for the murder. He knows the perfect place to take her until the whole mess is cleared up. So they run. That's when I really started to enjoy the story even more. The bad guys are hilarious. The couple is very sensual. I loved the book!

Kurzbeschreibung After witnessing a murder at her job as a butler at the ultra elite Sonoran resort, Georgiana Burne-Jones finds herself in the company of another guest, Coleman Worth.
