Read Lighting the Way!Von Ni NaThe second of the Kat and Natalie stories, Lighting the Way is a wonderful sequel to the first book, The Way Home. There are several flashbacks that allow the reader to perceive the story through Kat and Natalies eyes. This is done in a very clear and clever way, as it pushes the plot forward and helps to create the bigger picture of how the women's lives continue with several twists and turns. The book is meant to be a standalone title, but for a deeper understanding I do recommend reading The Way Home first. In Lighting the Way you meet Kat and Nat again, best friends and more. Nat has this habit of spanking quickly. In Kat she has found the perfect partner who craves these and hates them a lot at times. Does this mean the whole book is about spanking? No, absolutely not. Both women struggle, some of this is told in the first book, some new struggles develop in this book. For me Lighting the Way is a story of healing and change. Compared to the tragic events in the first book, Lighting the Way is less drastic, but don't worry, you will get an amazing, emotional rollercoaster ride while Kat and Nat work on their problems. Lighting the Way is a book that I enjoyed endlessly; seeing the two women go through their lives makes this an awesome book to read. What I love is the open display of love and affection, just like the intimacy that these two ladies show. Kat and Nat are close, like in really close. And this close connection has an almost magic quality, they care so much for each other that you will probably want to read on simply because you feel so much for them the more their story unfolds. In addition, their intimacy means they know exactly how to hurt each other. None of the two is confrontational, but there is conflict between them. To see that at work is awesome to read, but did I mention heart-wrenching? There is a lot of variety in emotions which is depicted with love for detail. The fears, hopes and love of both women are something you can virtually grab and Miss Vitsky is amazing at bringing us Kat and Nat's feelings close. They feel real and are believable, because Kat and Nat just do what human beings sometimes do, they love, they are angry, they are happy, sad, sometimes they hurt the ones they love, too. If anything, Kat and Natalie are among the most wonderful characters you could read about. Due to the first person point of view you crawl into their minds, and the way this is written makes it easy to identify with either of them. They are not perfect human beings, they are believable, moreover, their decisions could be yours. So, Lighting the Way is definitely worth five stars.
